THE SCHOONER LAVINIA DELAYS SAILING THIS MORNING, AS SHE IS LACKING IN PROPER CREDENTIALS FOR AN OCEAN TRIP ENDING AT A FOREIGN PORT—WEISBARTH PREPARED FOR HIS CRUISE TO PALMYRA.

Captain Weisbarth of the schooner Lavinia, did not sail on his expedition to Palmyra Island et al, at 10 o'clock this morning. The old Viking had planned to set sail at that hour but he received some good advice from the Customs officials and he proceeded to act upon it.

One of the Customs inspectors went to the schooner this morning to settle some detail about the number on the vessel. He asked Weisbarth if the vessel was registered. Weisbarth was not certain on this point. Weisbarth was advised to attend to this detail for if the schooner were in foreign territory without a certificate, she would be subject to confiscation. Palmyra Islands are under British control, so they are foreign territory.

THE JURY MUST WAIT

A COMPLAINT FROM THE JURY BOX IN JUDGE GEAR'S COURT THIS MORNING—ARRAIGNMENTS AND VARIOUS OTHER MATTERS TAKE UP THE TIME WHILE THE JURY SWORN IN THE FRANCA CASE HAVE TO WAIT.

Only in a tangled story can the events of this morning in Judge Gear's court be told. There were many interests involved, from murder to an automobile trip, and it is exceedingly probable that after all nobody was pleased at the outcome.

Yesterday afternoon Judge Gear began the hearing of the case of A. P. Franca, charged with selling liquor without a license at the Halfway House on the Nuuanu Pali road. It was only after some difficulty that a jury was found, as the panel was exhausted and two were still required. Bailiff Ellis managed to secure Prince David Kawananakoa and Captain J. H. Black and thus the jury was complete. The Prince had arranged to leave on the Kinau at noon today for an automobile trip on the island of Hawaii with the Princess and the Deering, but the court thought that the pleasure of sitting as a juror on a liquor case would probably be more of a change.

As the case was presented Attorney Dunne for the defence moved to strike out all the evidence given by officer Harry W. Flint, who had testified to the purchase of the liquor from the defendant on the ground that it was against public policy to allow testimony of the kind to be used for the conviction of any man. Dunne's point was that the police had simply built up an offense with the aid of informers. There was a long wrangle between the defence and Assistant Attorney General Prosser from which the jury was excluded and finally Judge Gear reserved his ruling until this morning.

Naturally enough the jurors imagined that they would go ahead with the case the first thing when court opened today. That would be the view that any business man would take. But the law is a fearful thing and such a small trifle as wasting the time of a couple of dozen unfortunate jurors does not at all concern the members of the bar, that is, when their own time is concerned.

It happened that since the court had met the police drag net had been busy and seven bench warrants issued under grand jury indictments, had been executed. Of course each counsel for each of the new prisoners wanted to be heard at once and so for an hour or more the luckless jurors twiddled their thumbs while ornaments of the bar told the court of the spotlessness of their much abused clients.

Three of them, Akiona, Okana and Hamada were charged with having che fa tickets in their possession. C. C. Bittling applied for bail for one he represented and Judge Gear fixed the bail at $2,000, an amount which made the attorney gasp. J. W. Cathcart and E. M. Watson, who represented other of the che fa men, added their mournful protests, but the judge was obdurate. The legislature, he said, had fixed the penalty at a fine of $1000 or imprisonment for a year, and it was also the practice not to accept bail for less than the most severe punishment that could be imposed. The argument grew animated, not to say heated and still the trial jurors twiddled their thumbs.

Finally Assistant Attorney General Prosser appeared as a peacemaker and said that he thought $500 would be sufficient of a bond.

"Oh, very well," said the judge, "at the request of the Attorney General the bond will be fixed at $500."

The jury woke up hopefully. Perhaps, the jurors thought, they were going to be permitted to go to work again. But no. There were other legal gentlemen to be heard from.

In the prisoners row were Matsuda, charged with fast and heedless driving, Makamoto, accused of selling liquor without a license, Joseph Casino and Kaniela alias Kuma for robbery in the second degree, Pang Kau, for assault and battery and E. Geneau, for murder in the first degree.

They had all to be arraigned, but Assistant Attorney General Prosser pointed out that the trial jury in the Franca case was all there waiting patiently. The judge suggested taking the arraignments at noon, but there was a protest from the bar, and at last after much more talk the arraignments were put over until tomorrow at nine.

Then at last the Franca case was recommenced but not before an indignant protest had been addressed to Judge Gear by Juror J. A. M. Johnson.

IRISH LEADER VISITS NEW YORK

JOHN REDMOND

John Redmond, leader of the Irish party in the House of Commons, arrived in New York recently to attend a conference of Irishmen. Redmond's policy is simply that of bitterly harassing the British government until Ireland is granted freedom. He declares that nothing but cutting Ireland loose will satisfy the Irish party, and that the party contains votes in Parliament to carry out his threats. Redmond's threat is to oppose all measures for the benefit of the Colonies and the Empire, until Ireland's demands are satisfied. When the big colonies find their measures turned down one after another, as he says the Irish vote can turn them down, they will rebel and break away, says this Irish leader. Redmond was made quite a lot of in New York and declared himself very emphatically in interviews.

MAKIKI BURGLARS

POLICE MAKE AN IMPORTANT CAPTURE AT AN EARLY HOUR THIS MORNING—LEADERS OF A TOUGH GANG OF YOUNGSTERS WHO HAVE BEEN ENTERING HOUSES AND WHO SECURED VALUABLE PLUNDER FROM OWENS' PLACE.

The ringleader of a gang of young thieving hoodlums of the Makiki district, is thought by the police, to have been caught at an early hour this morning. His name is Robert Keliia and he was arrested by Mounted Officer Barney Joy about 2 o'clock on Beretania street near Punahou road.

Joy was notified by the station clerk last night that the residence of Guy Owens at the corner of Anapuni street and Wilder avenue had been entered during the evening while the family was absent, and robbed of diamond rings, a pearl ring, two Hawaiian dollars and forty Hawaiian quarters and other articles.

The officer happened to notice Keliia sitting on a fence about 2 o'clock and stopped and asked him what he was doing out at such an hour. The youth's general manner aroused the suspicion of Joy, so the officer started to search the boy. The first thing that attracted the attention of the officer was a handsome gold ring with pearl setting, which the boy wore on his hand. Joy took the ring, as he felt that the boy could not have purchased such a handsome article. A search of the youth's pockets disclosed some skeleton key. A dark lantern was also found in Keliia's possession. Joy sent the boy to the police station.

Detective McDuffie questioned Keliia and from him learned that Manuel Freitas, another boy, was concerned in the affair. The latter was arrested this morning. Both boys have been questioned closely this morning by the authorities. The police learned that Keliia secured entrance to the Owens place through the front door by means of the skeleton keys. The Freitas boy is said to have been concerned with him in the robbery.

They are also said by the police to have been in the recent robbery of servants' quarters at Harrison's place in Makiki. Other robberies are thought to be due to the crowd.

WAILUKU FIRE DEPARTMENT.

WAILUKU, September 16.—The hose and chemical engine for the Wailuku fire department are anxiously awaited by the fire brigade of the town. All the pipes and fire hydrants have been put in place, and in readiness for the hose. As soon as the other apparatus arrive, it will probably mean a reduction in insurance rates all along the line. There are very many buildings on Market street which have been rated by the Board of Fire underwriters at 6 per cent, a high figure to pay for fire insurance.
